The University of Washington has three campuses that offer over 606 degree options across 314 programs.

- The UW's fiscal year 2018 (FY18) budget totals nearly $7.3 billion.
- Tuition revenue comprises 64 percent of the UW's general operating fund resources (state funds plus tuition revenue), compared to 34 percent in 2003. This number is down from 71 percent in FY15, due to legislatively mandated tuition reductions and increases in state funding.

- The UW's 2017-18 resident undergraduate tuition and fee rate is $10,974, which is below the mean and median of our U.S. News Top 25 Public Research University peers.

The UW's average time to degree is four years, and 82 percent of entering freshmen graduate within six years, the highest percentage of any public university in the state.

The UW educates Washington's most promising students:

- 74 percent of UW undergraduate students are residents of Washington.
- 3.1 percent increase in the number of freshman applications to the Seattle campus over the past year.
- 65.5 percent freshman admission rate for students from Washington.
- All 39 Washington counties have students at the UW.

In fall 2017, 41 percent of UW students were pursuing at least one science, technology, engineering & mathematics (STEM) major and in 2016-17, the UW awarded 6203 STEM degrees, 8.8 percent more than 2015-16. Forty-one percent of students who have declared STEM majors are women.

UW Continuum College (formerly Educational Outreach) educates more than 55,000 students annually through UW Professional & Continuing Education, International and English Language Programs, Summer Youth, Summer Quarter, UW in the High School, and the Osher Lifelong Learning Institute.
AFFORDABILITY AND ACCESS

• Since before the recession, the number and proportion of underrepresented minority students at the UW has increased, comprising 21.4 percent of the 2017 incoming domestic freshman class.

• In 2017-18, 35 percent of all domestic UW students entering college for the first time would be the first generation in their families to attain a bachelor’s degree. That number is 44 percent at UW Bothell and 58 percent at UW Tacoma.

• Over half of all UW undergraduates graduate with no known debt, and those who borrow graduate with less debt than the national average.

• In 2017-18, 27 percent of undergraduates are eligible for Pell Grant funding.

• As of 2015-16, the UW has more Pell Grant recipients than 22 of our U.S. News Top 25 Public Research University peers.

• In 2016-17, 31 percent (nearly 10,000) of UW undergraduate residents were eligible for Husky Promise¹, which provides free tuition to students with financial need.

• Since the start of the Husky Promise program in 2007, about 39,000 students have received support from the program across the UW’s three campuses.

• In 2017-18, about 53 percent of UW undergraduates are receiving some form of financial aid, totaling over $430 million.

• In 2017-18, 3,550 and 8,000 UW students are projected to receive funds from the College Bound Scholarship Program and the Washington State Need Grant, respectively.

• In 2017-18, the UW is giving over $102 million in institutional grants and scholarships to Washington residents.
